Summary:

Fairways Nursing Home is located in a residential area which is off the main road into Trearddur Bay, Anglesey.

Well-being is rated Excellent because people consistently achieve positive outcomes and are supported to live fulfilling lives that reflect their individual wishes, preferences and aspirations. People are actively involved in decisions about their care, maintain meaningful relationships, participate in a wide range of activities and community opportunities, and are supported to remain connected to what matters most to them.

Care and Support is rated Excellent because people receive highly personalised, outcome-focused care from skilled staff who understand their needs. Effective assessment, care planning and review processes ensure people remain safe and support remain responsive and centred on achieving positive outcomes, promoting health, wellbeing, dignity and independence.

Environment is rated Good because people live in a welcoming, comfortable and well-maintained home that promotes safety, wellbeing and independence. The environment is personalised to reflect individual preferences, and appropriate equipment and adaptations are in place to support people's needs and enhance their quality of life.

Leadership and Management is rated Excellent because leaders have established a strong, values-based culture that promotes rights, inclusion and positive outcomes for people. Effective governance, robust quality assurance processes, investment in staff development and responsive management oversight drive continuous improvement and support the delivery of high-quality, person-centred care.

Findings:

Well-being — Excellent

People experience excellent wellbeing outcomes because support is highly personalised, enabling and focused on maintaining identity, independence and choice. Staff know people well and understand their preferences, routines, communication needs and life histories. People are actively involved in decisions about daily life, including meals, activities, routines and changes within the home. Staff work proactively with health and social care professionals to achieve positive outcomes, adapting support to meet individual goals and changing needs. Records demonstrate personalised interventions had improved people's nutrition, emotional wellbeing, confidence and independence, enabling greater community involvement and enhanced quality of life.

People benefit from an extensive and varied programme of meaningful activities that promote wellbeing, social inclusion and choice. There is a monthly newsletter where information is shared. Activities are tailored to individual needs and abilities and include arts and crafts, baking, sensory sessions, gardening, exercise, quizzes and themed events. The service maintains strong links with the local community through visits from schools, churches, entertainers and therapy animals, and provides a range of outings and special events, including live entertainment, craft club attendance, fundraising initiatives and recreational experiences. Activity records and photographs evidenced high levels of engagement, with staff also supporting people to celebrate important personal milestones. The service operates a ‘My Wish’ initiative, which enables people living in the home to express a personal wish or aspiration that staff then endeavour to make a reality. The service provides a Welsh active offer with a number of Welsh speaking staff and bilingual signage, further promoting people’s wellbeing, identity and language needs.

People feel safe, valued and well supported by staff who know them well and respond promptly to changes in their needs. Risks are effectively assessed and managed in a way that promotes both safety and independence, while strong partnership working with healthcare professionals helps ensure timely interventions and positive outcomes. People consistently describe staff as kind, caring and respectful, and benefit from a person-centred approach that enables them to maintain their wellbeing, dignity and quality of life. The home's strong person-centred culture, combined with meaningful relationships between residents and staff, helps people feel secure, valued and confident in raising concerns. We saw evidence that people are not only protected from harm but are enabled to take positive risks, maintain independence and achieve outcomes that matter to them.

Positive outcomes are consistently achieved across all aspects of people's wellbeing, including physical health, emotional wellbeing, communication, relationships and Welsh language provision. People are supported to make informed decisions when moving into the home through comprehensive assessments and planned transitions, helping them settle successfully. Staff take a proactive and preventative approach, identifying changes in people's needs, involving relevant professionals and adapting support at an early stage to prevent issues from escalating. Our inspection found excellent wellbeing practice embedded throughout the service, supported by effective communication, strong partnership working and the use of a wide range of information sources to ensure people receive the right support at the right time.

Care & Support — Excellent

People receive highly personalised care and support based on comprehensive assessments that reflect their preferences, life history, interests, cultural needs and healthcare requirements. Personal plans provide clear guidance for staff and are reviewed regularly to ensure support remains responsive to people's changing needs. Staff adopt individualised approaches that promote independence, wellbeing, and enable people to maintain choice and control over their daily lives. Personal plans are highly personalised, concise and guide staff about people's preferences, routines, beliefs, likes, dislikes, communication needs and desired outcomes. They are reviewed when needs change, and the evidence shows staff translate plans into exceptional day-to-day practice.

The service demonstrates exceptionally effective partnership working with a wide range of healthcare professionals. Records show regular involvement from physiotherapists, occupational therapists, dietitians, mental health professionals, specialist nurses and consultants. Staff follow professional advice appropriately and use recommendations effectively to support positive outcomes for people. People told us they are able to access healthcare services when required, including routine medical reviews and specialist interventions. There is a strong emphasis on preventative healthcare. Robust monitoring of people's nutrition, hydration and overall health supports the early identification of concerns and helps to prevent avoidable complications and unnecessary hospital admissions. Staff demonstrate a good understanding of peoples' eating and drinking needs.

Records and evidence provided by the service demonstrate positive improvements in people's health and wellbeing. These outcomes reflect the proactive and person-centred approach adopted by staff to support people's health and wellbeing. People achieve exceptional outcomes through the care and support they receive. Examples included individuals returning to their own home, maintaining important relationships and making significant recoveries following serious illness. These outcomes are supported by skilled staff, effective healthcare partnerships and a strong commitment to helping people achieve the best possible quality of life.

People receive their medicines safely and as prescribed. Medication management arrangements are well established, with clear oversight, accurate record keeping and regular auditing processes that help ensure safe practice. Records show the service routinely reviews the effectiveness of medicines, including those prescribed on an ‘as required’ basis, to ensure they continue to meet people's needs and achieve the intended outcomes. Staff monitor people for any changes in their health or wellbeing and seek professional advice when required. The service ensures nurses receive appropriate training to maintain the skills and knowledge necessary to safely administer medicines, including end-of-life medication. Robust audit systems are in place to monitor medication practices, identify areas for improvement and promote learning.

Environment

Good

The accommodation is bright, spacious and homely, providing people with a comfortable and welcoming place to live. People can choose to relax in communal lounges or spend time in the privacy of their own bedrooms, which are personalised with their own furniture, decorations and treasured possessions. Communal areas support a wide range of social, recreational and cultural activities, helping people maintain relationships and participate in meaningful occupation. People also have access to the Fairways Shop, where they can purchase a variety of items, supporting independence and choice. Lounge areas are welcoming and provide opportunities for social interaction, with staff readily available nearby to provide support when required. People benefit from access to pleasant outdoor spaces where they can spend time relaxing, socialising and enjoying the fresh air. The environment promotes positive wellbeing, independence and quality of life, while providing opportunities for both social engagement and quiet reflection.

People live in a safe and secure environment where effective measures are in place to protect them from harm. Keypad-controlled doors and alarm systems help prevent unauthorised access to hazardous areas, while visitor access is monitored and recorded to ensure the safety of people living in the home. The environment is well maintained and free from identified hazards. Equipment, including passenger lifts, hoists and fire safety systems, are serviced regularly, and gas and electrical safety checks are completed as required. Repairs are addressed promptly, helping to maintain a safe living environment. Personal Emergency Evacuation Plans are in place, regularly reviewed and easily accessible to staff. Staff receive fire safety training and participate in regular fire drills, ensuring they are prepared to respond appropriately in the event of an emergency.

Leadership & Management — Excellent

Leadership and management are excellent, underpinned by robust governance processes, effective workforce oversight and a strong commitment to continuous improvement. The Responsible Individual (RI) is highly visible and accessible, undertaking regular visits and comprehensive reviews of staffing, training, supervision, incidents, complaints, medication management, environmental matters, resident feedback and overall service performance. Monthly audits of service delivery, supported by governance logs, incident reviews, detailed analysis and policy monitoring, provide clear evidence of effective oversight and quality assurance. The provider has an established suite of policies and procedures, demonstrating a strong organisational commitment to maintaining systems that support compliance with legislation, regulatory requirements and best practice.

Leaders demonstrate a strong commitment to listening to and acting on feedback from people, relatives, staff and professionals. Staff morale is high, creating an upbeat, positive atmosphere. The manager and deputy manager take pride in their roles and work diligently to provide people with the best possible service. The service provider gathers views through resident and staff meetings. Feedback is used effectively to drive positive change, resulting in improvements to activities, meals, communal areas, gardens and people's overall experience of living in the home. Records show feedback is routinely reviewed, followed up and monitored to ensure actions are completed and desired outcomes achieved. This demonstrates a responsive and inclusive culture where people's views directly influence service development. The provider also responds promptly and appropriately to external feedback, with recommendations arising from audits, monitoring visits and inspections addressed swiftly and evidenced through clear action planning and records.

Workforce arrangements are highly effective and support positive outcomes for people. Staff undergo the required pre-employment checks. The service employs sufficient numbers of skilled and well-trained staff who provide high-quality care and support. Staff hold relevant qualifications, are registered with Social Care Wales and maintain high levels of training compliance, including specialist training to meet people's individual needs. A range of learning methods, including face-to-face, practical and online training, supports effective learning and development. Staff report feeling well supported by approachable leaders, and staff wellbeing is actively promoted.

Strong leadership and governance systems ensure staffing, training, medication management, infection prevention, environmental safety, supervision and policy compliance are effectively monitored, with prompt action taken where improvements are identified. Feedback from staff was overwhelmingly positive. They consistently rated the service as excellent, reported feeling well supported in their roles, and highlighted the high standard of care provided to people living at the service. Staff frequently praised the caring culture, strong teamwork, supportive management, positive working environment, and opportunities for learning and development.

Areas identified for improvement

Where we identify Areas for Improvement but we have not found outcomes for people to be at immediate or significant risk, we discuss these with the provider. We expect the provider to take action and we will follow this up at the next inspection.

Where we find outcomes for people require significant improvement and/or there is risk to people's well-being we identify areas for Priority Action. In these circumstances we issue a Priority Action Notice(s) to the Provider, and they must take immediate steps to make improvements. We will inspect again within six months to check improvements have been made and outcomes for people have improved.

CIW has no areas for improvement identified following this inspection.

CIW has not issued any Priority action notices following this inspection.
