Summary:

Clydach Court is a residential care home in Tonypandy, operated by Rhondda Cynon Taff County Borough Council. The service is set over two communities, providing support to older adults with care needs who live with dementia in one, and supporting adults with a learning disability in the other.

Well-being is good because people are supported to experience positive outcomes which promote their overall well-being. Care and support requires improvement because, while people receive support from care staff who understand and respond to their individual needs, they do not always protect and promote people's safety. The environment is good because the provider has taken action to improve safety, security and oversight within the home. Leadership and management is good because effective leadership and strengthened governance arrangements are driving improvements across the service.

Findings:

Well-being — Good

Well-being is good because people experience positive outcomes, with new measures introduced by the service supporting their health and well-being. We saw people appear comfortable, settled and appropriately supported. Interactions between care staff and people are positive and respectful. Care staff respond appropriately to individual needs and provide support in a patient and considerate manner. People can move freely around the home and receive support in line with their assessed needs. Visitors were present during the inspection, demonstrating people are supported to maintain relationships which are important to them.

The service has taken action to address recent issues. Robust arrangements are in place to improve the security of medicines and reduce risks to people's health and well-being. Additional monitoring and oversight arrangements have been introduced for people requiring enhanced support, helping to ensure care needs are reviewed appropriately. Appropriate safeguarding arrangements assist people to maintain their safety. Records and discussions with managers demonstrate appropriate engagement with safeguarding processes when concerns have arisen.

The home is clean, tidy and suitably maintained. Environmental improvements to address issues identified previously have been completed, including securing areas of the home which should not be accessed by people without support. Overall, people receive support which promotes their comfort and quality of life.

Care & Support — Requires Improvement

Care and support has been considered proportionately during this inspection, with the inspection activity focusing on the areas identified through our pre-inspection analysis and regulatory oversight. An area for improvement was identified under this theme at the previous inspection. This forms part of CIW's regulatory history for the service. The evidence gathered during this inspection was not sufficient to determine whether the area for improvement has been fully addressed. It therefore remains subject to further regulatory consideration.

We saw people appeared clean, appropriately cared for and settled. Interactions between care staff and people are positive, respectful and responsive. People can move around the service independently, with documentation seen confirming proportionate checks and monitoring undertaken by care staff as required. Care staff demonstrate a good understanding of people's individual needs and provide support in a manner which promotes their well-being. We saw people are supported to maintain relationships with those who are important to them. The service is open to visitors, with family members present during the inspection.

There have been a number of improvements and developments at the service. The service has introduced a range of measures to improve oversight and reduce risks to people around medication management. These include targeted CCTV monitoring, enhanced monitoring of controlled drugs, and additional audits and checks by management and senior care staff. Records inspected demonstrate these arrangements are operating in practice.

Environment

Good

We have not considered this theme in full. Our findings for this theme are based on the specific areas considered during this inspection. The environment is good because the service provides a clean, safe and well-maintained environment. The service has taken action to address concerns identified previously, whereby health and safety risks were not reduced as far as reasonably practicable. Rooms which were previously identified as not being secure are now locked and appropriately secured, reducing risks to people and promoting their safety. This is an improvement acted upon since the last inspection.

The home appears clean, tidy and generally well maintained. The service has introduced CCTV in key areas of the home. This provides an additional safeguard for people and supports management oversight of the service. This demonstrates the provider has taken proactive action to reduce identified risks and strengthen arrangements to help keep people safe. We found people benefit from an environment which is secure and supports their well-being.

Leadership & Management — Good

We have not considered this theme in full. Our findings for this theme are based on the specific areas considered during this inspection. Leadership and management is good because leaders have taken effective action to address previous concerns, strengthen oversight arrangements and drive improvements across the service.

The management team described improvements in leadership capacity and support arrangements, including the appointment of an additional deputy manager. New management meetings have been introduced, helping governance actions to be progressed and monitored effectively. Management peer supervision arrangements have been established, providing opportunities for support, reflection and shared learning.

We found significant progress has been made in relation to staff training. Training records have been improved and provide a clear overview of training completed and when training is due. Managers have established training compliance expectations and systems are in place to monitor outstanding training. We saw evidence any outstanding training has been booked and there is a clear plan to continue improving compliance. Supervision arrangements are organised and well managed, with responsibility shared across the management team. Records demonstrate care staff are receiving regular supervision. The Priority Action Notice issued at the previous inspection in relation to staff training and supervision has been addressed. We are assured appropriate arrangements are in place to support sustained improvement.

Managers demonstrate a good understanding of areas requiring further development and are progressing actions relating to care planning, infection prevention and control, training and governance. Policies identified as being required at the previous inspection are now in place. This is an improvement acted upon since the last inspection.

Areas identified for improvement

Where we identify Areas for Improvement but we have not found outcomes for people to be at immediate or significant risk, we discuss these with the provider. We expect the provider to take action and we will follow this up at the next inspection.

Where we find outcomes for people require significant improvement and/or there is risk to people's well-being we identify areas for Priority Action. In these circumstances we issue a Priority Action Notice(s) to the Provider, and they must take immediate steps to make improvements. We will inspect again within six months to check improvements have been made and outcomes for people have improved.

The table(s) below show the area(s) for priority action and/or those for improvement we have identified.

Summary of Areas for Improvement	Date identified
People's well-being is at risk as the way care and support is provided does not always promote and maintain the safety and well-being of people.	17/04/26

CIW has not issued any Priority action notices following this inspection.
